THE WALL THAT WAS NOT.

A Story of a Girl's Treachery to Her Sister.

By HELEN RAMSDALL.

[Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

In the rosy light of the setting sun Miss Rachel, the elder of the two Bel-den sisters, was gathering her sunflower seed. Miss Emily, the younger, sat on the porch watching her sister's movements, her sewing lying idle on her lap. Presently she ventured to remonstrate.

"I'm quite sure, Rachel, that the seeds are not nearly ripe enough to gather and that you are only spoiling your next year's crop."

"Very well. In that case I'll buy some new ones," answered Miss Rachel, "or perhaps we can afford to build a six foot fence on our side of this one and grow it over with vines. Any-way, not one of these seeds is going to fall on their side."

Miss Emily rose and walked over to the fence, speaking very softly.

"I don't want them to hear us, Rachel. It's like trying to quarrel with them, and they're always tried to be friendly. I really can't see why you hate them so. You used to like Steve once, and his wife is a pleasant, sweet spoken woman."

"Sweet spoken—yes! I should say that's how she got him."

Miss Emily sighed wistfully.

"I don't see why you hate them so," she repeated.

"You don't? Humpf! Well, you just once try being nice and polite to them, and—you needn't be my sister any longer!"

At that moment a girl some twelve years of age came out of the household thus condemned by Miss Rachel, and both the sisters grew silent. They had been speaking much too low for their neighbors to hear what they said, and in innocent ignorance the girl called over, though timidly, as if half expecting one of the snubs she so completely failed to understand.

"Aren't you gathering your seeds awful early, Miss Bel-den? It's better to let them get ripe. They're the finest sunflowers we've ever seen. We're sorry they're quit blooming."

To the girl Miss Rachel was silence itself. To her sister she replied in tones of unuttered indignation too low for the girl to hear.

"It'll be a six foot fence next year if I have to live on dry bread."

"Oh, Rachel, how it would look!"

"We can cover our side with vines."

"But in winter the vines would be dead, just the same as the flowers."

Without reply Miss Rachel gathered up her apronful of great staring seed cases and ascended the stairs to her room. Here she went straight to an old fashioned writing desk and, opening it, placed the package of seeds in one of its many compartments.

Once it was out of her sight the hard lines in her comely face relaxed, and gradually as they faded her natural expression returned, revealing tears of suffering and of genuine kindness as well.

For a long time she sat there absorbed in her reverie, and as the sunlight died without new light touched Miss Rachel's face from within, and led by some touch of previous memory, she opened a small locked drawer and took out a quaint old box of faintly fragrant sandalwood.

It had grown too dark to see its contents plainly, but Miss Rachel did not need to see them. She knew every line of the faded lines to the kind of land which the river will recede from. In one place it will leave magnificent soil ready at once to take a splendid crop of wheat even if the winter rains, as is so often the case, amount to nothing. In another the greater moisture will only allow leguminous plants of country peas and pulses. In the dampest ooze of depressions a plant called shamrock is produced, of little value save as fodder, but beautiful with its bright green color and excellent to the sportsman as an attraction to flocks of gray and bar headed geese. Other lands again will grow nothing but long reeds and low tamarisk scrub. These, if properly placed in the neighborhood of fields, have their value as preserves for black partridges and hare, but for utilitarian purposes can only provide materials for hunting or at best give employment to the makers of fan handles; but, alas, there is the possibility that in the place of soil—good, bad or indifferent—sand only may be thrown up, and the Indus has a bad reputation for the amount of sand it carries. Native lore gives the river the title of "Sila de Jole"—Allahabad Pioneer.

Likewise Mistaken.

A small boy was fishing on Sunday morning. He had a basket of fish alongside of him. A clergyman happened to see him and, going over to where he was busily watching the bob, said:

"You naughty, cruel boy! Don't you know that it is a sin to fish on the Sabbath? Besides the sin, think of the cruelty of taking the poor little worm out of the ground and sticking that nasty sharp hook through its body."

"That ain't no worm. That's an artificial fly," answered the boy.

"Ah, I was mistaken," said the preacher.

"So were these fish," said the boy, picking up the basket and showing them to the clergyman.—New York Sun.

And before Miss Emily could reply she was gone on this, one of her many deeds of mercy.

Alone, Miss Emily entered the room and went to the window, where she could watch her sister's tall form through the fast deepening darkness.

A lamplighter came by as she stood there and lighted the lamp in the street below, just in front of the window. As she moved from the window the audacious gleam of light penetrated past her, falling directly on the opened box of keepsakes.

Dreadfully, yet half startled, Miss Emily moved toward them. She knew well enough what they were—the package of letters tied with a narrow black ribbon were Andrew Arnold's letters of love to Rachel; the little box beside them held a well known turquois ring, but the picture that lay on top, surely she might see that again after all these many years.

Half guiltily she lifted it and held it in the light, eagerly scanning the face. Then, with a little sob, she sank on her knees, the picture still clasped in her hand, her hidden face resting on her arms.

Silently thus the minutes passed, yet Miss Emily took no heed. And so Miss Rachel, coming home to a darkened, unlocked house, found her a little later.

For a moment she stood in the doorway, lost in wonder, her sister's still form in the lamplight; then she advanced swiftly to her side.

"Emily," she said—"Emily, dear, are you ill?"

Miss Emily sprang to her feet as if suddenly waked from a dream. One hand still held the photograph, but after an instant she dropped it on the desk, and, clasping her hands, she cried in a low, passionate voice—a new voice to Miss Rachel:

"Oh, Rachel, Rachel, forgive me! He did not know; he never, never dreamed it. You, you only had his life and all of it, and oh, I could not help it! Surely I have suffered enough, and I never, never meant to wrong you."

Miss Rachel stood so still she might have been carved of stone, too terribly bewildered for the simplest form of thought. But her sister went on with her passionate pleading.

"Can't you forgive me, Rachel, when he never, never knew and you had all his love?"

Miss Rachel's voice trembled.

"But Steve—Stephen Loring?"

"He caught my girlish fancy, Rachel. But when I found out how I felt—about your Andrew—I sent Steve away. And the next week Andrew died so suddenly—his heart all yours to the last. Oh, Rachel, sister, you cannot forgive me, I know! I will go away—alone!"

"Fush, child," said Miss Rachel sternly. "I have nothing to forgive. You are the greater sufferer, as you have always been. But go away for awhile. I want to be alone."

Next morning the sun had scarcely dried the radiant dew when Miss Rachel opened an unused gate and went over to her neighbor's. In her hand she held the tiny package of seed she had placed last night on her desk.

Next year two rows of sunflowers nodded across the fence—the same low picket fence—not by any means six feet high.

AN UNCERTAIN RIVER.

The Indus Has a Bad Habit of Changing Its Channel.

The river Indus in width during the year may vary by miles. Traffic for long distances cannot be guaranteed because the ever shifting channel throws up mud flats and sand banks here and overflows good land there in a manner which defeats the wisdom of the ancient boatmen.

With the Indus, too, it is not merely a question of land or water. There is always a gamble as to the kind of land which the river will recede from. In one place it will leave magnificent soil ready at once to take a splendid crop of wheat even if the winter rains, as is so often the case, amount to nothing. In another the greater moisture will only allow leguminous plants of country peas and pulses. In the dampest ooze of depressions a plant called shamrock is produced, of little value save as fodder, but beautiful with its bright green color and excellent to the sportsman as an attraction to flocks of gray and bar headed geese. Other lands again will grow nothing but long reeds and low tamarisk scrub. These, if properly placed in the neighborhood of fields, have their value as preserves for black partridges and hare, but for utilitarian purposes can only provide materials for hunting or at best give employment to the makers of fan handles; but, alas, there is the possibility that in the place of soil—good, bad or indifferent—sand only may be thrown up, and the Indus has a bad reputation for the amount of sand it carries. Native lore gives the river the title of "Sila de Jole"—Allahabad Pioneer.

THE FIRST STEAMSHIPS.

Screw Propellers Did Not Come into Use Until 1850.

"We are prone to smile at the archaic prototypes of our modern steamships," writes Gustav H. Schwab in Harper's Weekly, "at their diminutive size, their clumsy build, their huge paddle boxes and their single slender smoke pipe, but we do not stop to think of the few brave men of those days who, undaunted by the opposition and ridicule of most of their fellows, persisted in their efforts to supplant sail by steam and who finally by sheer pluck and perseverance succeeded in these efforts."

The Savannah, which crossed the Atlantic in 1819, was a full rigged packet ship to which had been added a small one cylinder steam engine turning two paddle wheels, which were set in motion in smooth water when the wind failed. For two-thirds of the way across the Savannah depended solely upon her sails. In 1833 the Royal William made the passage in twenty-five days, under steam the whole way. In 1837 the Great Western was constructed, but her unusual length of 220 feet gave rise to many apprehensions as to her safety. The first screw steamship was built in 1830, and eight years later the Bremen made the passage in fifteen days. In 1852 the Scotia cut down the time from Queenstown to less than nine days. From that time on the record has been gradually reduced.

Pins.

Queen Catherine obtained pins from France, and in 1543 an act was passed "That no person shall put to sale any pinnes but only such as shall be double headed and have the heads soldered fast to the shaft of the pinnes, well smoothed, the shaft well shapen, the points well round filed, cauted and sharpened."

At this time most pins were made of brass, but many were also made of iron, with a brass surface. France sent a large number of pins to England until about the year 1623. In this year one John Tilsley started pinmaking in Gloucestershire. So successful was his venture that he soon had 1500 persons working. These pins made at Stroud were held in high repute. In 1635 pinmakers combined and founded a corporation. The industry was carried on at Bristol and Birmingham, the latter becoming the chief center.—London Standard.

How Mandarins Rank.

Mandarins in China may be distinguished by the blades which decorate their uniforms as well as by their buttons. Mandarins of the first rank have a bird known as the fung embroidered on their clothes. Mandarins of the second rank have their robes adorned by the figure of a cock. Mandarins of the third rank have a peacock. Mandarins of the fourth rank are adorned with a pellen. Those of the fifth rank are easily distinguished by the silver pheasant, those of the sixth rank are favored by a stork, mandarins of the seventh rank have a partridge, mandarins of the eighth rank quail and mandarins of the ninth rank the humble sparrow.

Enforced the Rules.

Museum Attendant—You'll please leave your umbrella or cane at the door, sir. Visitor—Very proper regulation. But it happens I have neither. Attendant—Then go and get van. No one is allowed to enter unless he has his umbrella or cane at the door. You may read the card for yourself, sorry London Tit-Bits.

Diplomacy.

"You persuaded your husband to join a glee club?"

"Yes," answered Mrs. Hagins; "when he starts singing at home I can now advise him not to tire his voice, and when he sings in the club I can't hear him."—Washington Star.

After Hours.

Some years ago on a day set apart for humiliation and prayer a manufacturer offered to pay his workmen their wages on condition that they attended church. To this they readily agreed.

Shortly before evening service one of the employees called at his employer's residence and told the servant he wished "to see the master."

"Now, Jack, what do you want?"

"Well, sir, me and ma myets hev been talking the thing over, and we'd like to knae if we can to church the neet do we get overtime for?"—London Spare Moments.

Her Mind Easy.

"I hear you are going to Australia with your husband, Kitty," said the mistress. "Aren't you nervous about the long voyage?"

"Well, ma'am," said Kitty calmly, "that's his lookout. I belong to him now, and if anything happens to me he'll be his loss, not mine."—London Mail.

Quick Wit.

Mrs. Sharpe—So you told Mr. Jones you wished you were single once more, did you? Sharp (with quick wit)—Only that I might have the happiness of marrying you over again, darling.—Boston Transcript.

The Patriot's Real Duty

"Democracy, after all, is not equality, for there is no such thing as equality between men, but sympathy." Let the American pause to consider this truth on the country's natal day and he will realize that our glorious country would be a more glorious one and life a sweeter reality if this principle was adhered to and fully understood. The United States is a great power in the world today. Its territory is wondrous, its resources limitless, its armament powerful, its prestige established. Of our country we are proud, and patriotism which is the sentiment outcropping of the mutual sympathy and understanding of the American people, manifests itself in celebration and holiday. Yet it is the abstract notion of the nation which appeals, or rather the collective historical associations, for man has ever been excited to admiration by deeds of valor, self-sacrifice and nobleness. The idea of loyalty to country and pride in the nation is a sympathetic bond between those who dwell on American soil.

We sing in the national anthem in harmonious chorus. We stand side by side and cheer our fleet. We would go against the common enemy to a man and the proverb, "blood is thicker than water," would hold good with our American blood into which we claim is blended the best corpuscles in circulation. Yes, on such stability is the nation founded, for America implies freedom and equality, yet, to quote again from Ray Standard Baker, "democracy, after all, is not equality, for there is no such thing as equality between men, but sympathy." When we have digested and come to practice this hard truth, we will have become indeed a proud people.

It is the flashes of reason illuminating the darker recesses of the denser brain which gives us the malcontent. While laboring under the delusion that we all should be equal he may indulge in harangues and imprecations but having an occasional revelation of the truth he is nonplused. All our internal strife, of race prejudice and labor bias is due to the fallacy that all men are equal. The principles of American government aim to give men the best possible chance "to live together in harmony and develop to the utmost possibility." Its protection and upbuilding should be appreciated by men and their appreciation shown in their attitude toward one another. In this way the type of American will become higher and through that righteous modification and readjustment (so unspectacular) which Herbert Spencer prescribes for the real upbuilding of mankind, we of today will hand down a priceless heritage to the future generations of the United States.

Three grand presidents of the Native Daughters and other grand officers of the order will attend the ceremonies on Wednesday evening.

New Marriage Law

The divorce evil in this State had become so alarming the past few years that the last Legislature passed a marriage law that may in a measure prevent many ill-assorted marriages. The new law governs the issuance of marriage licenses and parties who now apply to County Clerk Wright or his force of deputies for a marriage license will find those officials mighty inquisitive.

This new marriage law, which became effective last Saturday, will make it possible to obtain vital statistics. Heretofore the minister or person who performed the marriage ceremony has had the necessity of trying to secure this information but this has proven unsatisfactory. Now the statistics must be given before the marriage license can be secured.

Those who are contemplating matrimony should secure the information required before visiting the county clerk, or they will be refused the permit to consummate bliss. It is best to take the bride-to-be with the groom in applying for the marriage license, but this is in no sense obligatory. Each of the parties to be married must give their name in full, their residence, where the ceremony is to be performed, their race and nativity, whether they are single, widowed or divorced, the number of their marriage (whether more than once or not), their birthplace, name of their father and his birthplace, maiden name of mother and her birthplace, and the maiden name of the bride if she was previously married.

DRAMATIC SUICIDE OF A YOUNG MAN

Throws Himself Under a Moving Train of Cars and Dies
Instantly

Almando Moschini, a young man about 24 years of age, ended his life in a frightful and dramatic manner, at the Northwestern Pacific depot in this city last Monday evening. While the passenger train from San Francisco due here at 6:50 P. M. was nearing the station, Moschini, in the presence of a number of people who were loitering around the depot grounds, suddenly exclaimed, "Good bye," and throwing himself beneath the cars had his life crushed out of him instantly.

His body escaped the wheels, as it lay directly in the center of the track, but was frightfully mangled by the trucks. When picked up life was extinct, as his heart and lungs had been crushed to a pulp.

The young man was a laborer by occupation and had worked on various ranches in this valley for the past three or four years, and at the time of his tragic ending was employed on the Spreckels ranch.

The suicide was a most deliberate one and is described by eye-witnesses as most ghastly in the extreme. No cause can be assigned for the rash act, but was no doubt committed while the unfortunate young man was mentally unbalanced.

Coroner Blackburn came down from Santa Rosa Tuesday afternoon and held an inquest on the mutilated remains in Bates' undertaking parlors, where they were tragic ending.

The verdict of the Coroner's jury summoned to legally investigate the cause of death, was in accordance with the above facts. The deceased was a native of Italy and had no relatives on the coast except a brother who is said to be in the state of Nevada at present.

Death of An Aged Chinese

Hen Gee, a pioneer Chinese resident of this valley, died of opium poisoning last Tuesday. Hen Gee, who was a farm hand, had lived in this place and near vicinity for over forty years, and in the early days of his coming here worked for Henry Pickett on the farm now owned by Philip Bill. Of late he had been working for Skelton Glaister and on Tuesday morning, becoming suddenly ill, he was removed to the Chinese lodging house on Spain street, where he died shortly after.

Stone Bridge Completed

The stone bridge which crosses Agua Caliente Creek on the county road opposite lawyer H. P. Mathewson's farm, has been completed by contractor C. Shearer and will be turned over to the Board of Supervisors when it meets next week. It is one of the most substantial bridges ever built in this county and will be a lasting monument to the workmanship and skill of its builder. It will cost the county something over $2,000.

Fountain Now Plays in Plaza

The fountain and basin recently erected on the Plaza in front of the Broadway entrance to the new City Hall by the Woman's Club has been turned over to the City Trustees by contractor Shearer. Water from the city's artesian well was turned into the pipes leading to the fountain, one day this week, and it is now spouting jets of pure sparkling water six or eight feet above the surface of the basin, into which it descends. The water is as clear as crystal in the basin, into which will be placed in the near future a number of gold fish, in lieu of a number of sportive pollywogs which have taken possession of it.

Burglar Captured With Goods On Him

Alfredo Giselli, who was arrested on Saturday of last week on a warrant sworn out by Jos. Caroni of Agua Caliente, had his preliminary examination before Judge Small last Monday afternoon.
Giselli is charged with burglarizing a number of resorts in this valley.
Articles that had been purloined from the Lawrence Villa and Swiss Hotel in this place, the Eagle's Nest at Agua Caliente, El Verano barber shop and other places were found in his possession when taken into custody.

Judge Small after listening to the testimony against the accused and the argument of Dist. Attorney Clarence Lea held Giselli to answer to a charge of burglary before the Superior Court. His bail was fixed at $500, which he was unable to obtain and he was remanded into the custody of Sheriff Jack Smith, pending his trial.

Runaway and Smash-up

A horse attached to Adler's planing-mills delivery wagon ran away on First-street East Monday morning. The vehicle became cramped opposite the Methodist Church and the driver was thrown from his seat, but fortunately escaped serious injury. The animal continued his flight up the street and when opposite the Sonoma House collided with a light spring wagon, completely wrecking the hind wheels. The runaway was finally overhauled by a young lad named Willie Peterson, who jumped into the wagon at the rear end and making his way to the forward seat, seized the lines and brought the horse to a standstill. It was a nerve feat on the part of the youngster who is scarcely 14 years of age.

Horse Breaks Leg

A valuable horse belonging to Ehald Steiger of Schellville and being driven by the owner stumbled near the red tank on Broadway and broke one of his legs last Monday. The animal was later on knocked in the head and put out of his misery which was almost human and pitiable in the extreme.

Fractured His Arm

The little son of A. Grosskopf of Vineburg fell from a wagon, one day this week, and fractured his left forearm. The little fellow's injury was attended to by Dr. Leix.

Off For the Nevada Mines

Chas. and Lee McGimsey, the former a nephew and the latter a son of T. J. McGimsey of this place left Saturday for the Mt.
Grant mining district, Esmeralda county, Nevada. They were well equipped for the journey, which will be made by wagon road over the old Sonoma route via Mono Lake. Their objective point is the Lapian meadows, where is located the rich placer mines purchased two years ago by Drs. Thomson and Sprague and Messrs. Weaver, Noe and Bradbury. The McGim-sey boys expect to arrive at the mines the first week in July and will remain until late in the fall, doing assessment work for Dr.
Thomson and Mr. Weaver.

The route they will take over the Sierra is a fascinating one for lovers of nature. It abounds in magnificent scenery, fish and game while there is cool sparkling water and green feed a-plenty for their stock until the Nevada state line is passed.

Mervyn Hotel Bus Run Down by Automobile

The Mervyn Hotel bus in which were seated fourteen guests was run down by a reckless automobile driver on Tuesday. The bus was tipped over and its occupants were dumped unceremoniously into the middle of the road. Three ladies were badly bruised and shaken up but providentially no one was seriously hurt. The accident occurred on a small bridge near Glen Ellen which was not wide enough to allow a free passage of the colliding automobile and the big bus. Both had slacked up speed as they approached the bridge, which accounts for no fatalities. A warrant has been sworn out for the arrest of the reckless chauffeur, who hails from San Jose.

Poultry Men Take Notice.

Lewis & Cummings have just installed a bone cutter and are prepared to supply a limited amount

Our Valley and the German Singing Societies

Every year the beautiful Sonoma Valley is becoming more popular as a summer resort, especially with the people of the metropolis. And why should it not be so, with its glorious climate, its hot water springs with their healing powers and its accessibility to the metropolis of the Pacific. A business man can make a quick trip from San Francisco to any point in this valley from Saturday to Monday and still be able to attend to his business.

A short time ago one of the most prominent singing societies of San Francisco—"The Arion"—which heretofore has held its annual outings elsewhere, had a three-days outing at Boyes Springs. "The Harmonie," another well-known singing society of the metropolis, has just made arrangements to have its yearly "Harvest Festival" at Boyes Springs in September and the German singing society, "The Schwabischer Liederkreis," will arrive in the valley on July 3d to spend a few days with our people.
This popular society is composed wholly of Germans who hail from the Kingdom of Durinttemberg in the southern part of Germany, and are usually called "Die Schwabens." The members of this society are a band of whole-souled jolly fellows and we hope their stay here will be an enjoyable one.

The advance guard of the "Schwabischer Liederkreis" will arrive here on the evening of July 3d and will make their home at Emil Alber's resort, the One-Mile House on Broadway. The other members of the society will arrive on Sunday. For the afternoon of the Fourth the big bus and other vehicles of the Union Stables have been engaged for a drive to Albert Geisselmann's place at Agua Caliente, where the society will give a garden concert.

Messrs. Alber and Geisselmann are members of this singing society and will do all in their power to make the stay of its members here a pleasant and long-to-be-remembered one.

Palace Tonsorial Parlors

Paul Robin, the proprietor of this popular tonsorial establishment has engaged as his assistant Joe Silva, the well-known tonsorial artist of San Francisco. As Mr.
Robin is a first-class artist himself one is assured of a good shave and an up-to-date hair cut if the Palace is given a trial. The trade of both town and valley is respectfully solicited. Give the Palace a trial.

Goes to Prison for Eighteen Months

Kenneth Duncan, former Presbyterian minister of San Francisco, was Tuesday afternoon sentenced to serve eighteen months in Folsom prison by Judge Seawell, having entered a plea of guilty of grand larceny.

Prior to the passing of sentence Duncan addressed the court. He stated that he had been addicted to the use of a drug and at times this had made him a kleptomaniac.
He made a plea for leniency and would have liked to have been placed on probation.

Attorney Wright represented Duncan, and some witnesses were called one of whom was Supt.
Stocking of Agnews asylum.
Duncan was confined as a patient in that institution eleven years ago when Dr. Stocking was assistant physician. The doctor stated that Duncan suffered from depression and from melancholia then. He described some characteristics of the trouble.

Duncan heard his sentence without manifesting any show of surprise. His face paled somewhat.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr.
R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help.
That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as without fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.
